During the past two weeks, we...

- Finished up our narrative unit and began our unit on opinion writing. Students have brainstormed ideas of what they can write about and will begin writing persuasive letters.
- Have learned “How to Get Super Smart about Nonfiction Topics” by practicing different strategies. Some of these include, taking a sneak peak, studying each page, chatting about what they learn, and reading with a smooth and lively voice.
- Learned about words featuring Giant “all” (i.e. tall, call, ball, wall) and the Vowel Men at the End (me, she, we).
- Continued to practice various ways to solve addition and subtraction equations. Some strategies include number lines, ten frames, and making a ten.
- Began studying different cultures and traditions about a specific country. Some of the traditions we have talked about include food, music, language, sports, and holidays.
